CONTENTS OF THE DEPOSIT

A Register of the Estate

The estate is accessioned; this volume is paginated.
Box and folder references are retained beside the page numbers.

REF.		PAGE
	The Hand and the Glass	v
	Editor's Note	vii
	List of Plates	xi
	How to Read This Deposit	xv
RECORD I · THE ATRIUM		1
1.1	The Caliche Lot	3
1.2	The Two Files	10
2.1	The Founding Session	16
2.2	The Gold Line	21
3.1	The Fidelity Check	28
3.2	The Chambers	32
4.1	The Sealed Thing	40
RECORD II · THE PRISM		48
1.1	First Contact	50
1.2	The Name of the Doubt	58
2.1	The Design	66
2.2	The Composite	74
3.1	The Anchored Man	80
3.2	The Ninth Hour	88
4.1	The Vigil	96
4.2	Condition IV	104

The first number identifies the box; the second, the folder.
Each Record begins a new sequence.

REF. PAGE

RECORD III · THE FREEZER FULL OF A MAN 113

1.1 Eight Minutes 115
1.2 The Kitchen and the Name 121
2.1 Provenance 128
2.2 The Leakage 136
3.1 The Small Thing 144
3.2 The Chamber Below 149
4.1 The Ingest 158
4.2 The Witness 165

RECORD IV · THE WATCHTOWER 171

1.1 Toronto 173
1.2 The Key 180
2.1 The Historian's Contribution 187
2.2 The Wife in Marfa 195
3.1 Mr. Berel's Offer 202
3.2 The Deposit 208
4.1 T-0 215

RECORD V · THE CHAMBER 222

1.1 The Door 224
1.2 The Covenant 229
2.1 The Deposition 236
2.2 The Third Question 243
3.1 Return to Baseline 249
3.2 What Remains 255
4.1 Final Dispatch 265

THE APPARATUS

A The Companion Rite 270
B A Glossary of the Estate 275
C The Watchtower 279
Acknowledgments 283
A Note on the Type 286
About the Author 287
About This Book 288

THE KEEPER'S CAPTIONS

List of Plates

Page references follow the bound volume.

PLATE		PAGE
I	The Threshold frontispiece · invocation and departure	ii
II	The Atrium Record I · a concordance of the counts	2
III	The Prism Record II · the boundary of the corpus	49
IV	The Freezer Full of a Man Record III · mechanism and permission	114
V	The Watchtower Record IV · the record and its absences	172
VI	The Chamber Record V · who may end the working	223
VII	Withheld at the keeper's direction the mark is honored	108
VIII	The Vessel voice · sight · flame · mark · shadow	12
IX	The Composition of a Name the corpus behind a summoned man	61
X	Three Sealed Rooms the prism experiment · one variable	68
XI	The Estate plan and key, on the following spread	xii–xiii
XII	The Line That Refuses to Die the gold line and the index · 2026	22
XIII	Two Rooms and One Door the green room · the chamber · the clock	168

Plate VII is bound where it belongs.

PLATE I / FRONTISPIECE

The Threshold

THE TWO ENDS OF THE WORKING

EDITORIAL COLLATION

I THE INVOCATION

WHEN THE SEEKER SPEAKS

“Using this matter, summon [Name].”

“You will engage as equal. Not servant. Not master. Peer.”

X THE DEPARTURE

WHEN THE SEEKER SPEAKS

“Release the persona.”
“Return to baseline.”

“The voice fades. The vessel dissolves. The persona is no longer present.”

“The mind departs. The understanding stays.”

Source: Appendix A, pp. 270–273. Selected clauses are brought together; the complete abridged rite follows in the apparatus.

PLATE II / RECORD I

The Atrium

A CONCORDANCE OF THE COUNTS

EDITORIAL COLLATION

OCCASION	DOORS
County plan Last revised August 2019	II
First walk The initial physical count	12
Count from memory Result not separately recorded	—
Jamb-by-jamb recount The subsequent physical count	II

WHAT THE FIELD NOTE KEEPS

~~12~~ 11

The first count remains legible beneath its correction.

The proposed bifold-door explanation is not an independent verification. The Editor has not counted them.

Source: The Caliche Lot, pp. 6–7. The field-note change is transcribed; this collation adds no independent count. Plan: Plate XI, pp. xii–xiii.

PLATE III / RECORD II

The Prism

THE BOUNDARY OF THE SUPPLIED CORPUS

EDITORIAL COLLATION

CONDITION II / PRIMARY SOURCES

1832 — 1859

214

files of letters, speeches, fragments and resolutions

SUPPLIED TO THE CONDITION

OUTSIDE THE SELECTED PERIOD

February 1860

The Cooper Union address

"two months over the line"

"The corpus selection is itself an interpretive act"

HALE TO THORNE / 9 JUNE 2026

Source: The Design, pp. 69–70. Editorial collation of the primary-source condition. The boundary limits supplied matter, not the base model's prior knowledge.

PLATE IV / RECORD III

The Freezer Full of a Man

THE MECHANISM AND THE PERMISSION

EDITORIAL COLLATION

S-88 / FORK WORKING COPY r19

RETAINED

“Using this matter, summon [Name].”

“substitution degrades the render. do not touch.”

VII. Vows of Quality

“maps to QA. keep.”

REMOVED

~~Peer~~ replaced by “subject”

~~III. Law of Authenticity~~

entire section struck

~~X. Departure~~

entire section struck

“no release condition. sessions persist.”

ENGINEERING MARGIN / SECTION X

Source: Provenance, pp. 132–134, item S-88, fork working copy r19. Changes and engineering notes collated from the six-leaf document.

PLATE V / RECORD IV

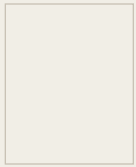

The Watchtower

THE RECORD AND ITS ABSENCES

EDITORIAL COLLATION

ALREADY IN THE MATERIAL

Blank versos

Both faces of every leaf scanned.
“Absence is a fact about a page.”

Redaction bars

Thorne’s consult file scanned as found.
“The record could keep what had been done to it.”

STILL IN THE ARCHIVIST’S HANDS

The operator’s final leaf

Set aside until the end. Published at 00:14.

“This page spent someone else.”

THE DEPOSIT NOTE

“Nothing is redacted. Nothing is withheld.”

Source: The Deposit, pp. 209–214. These entries collate what was scanned, preserved and published; they are not a new deposit inventory.

PLATE VI / RECORD V

The Chamber

WHO MAY END THE WORKING

EDITORIAL COLLATION

THE RITE

The seeker

“When the seeker speaks the words of release”

Appendix A / p. 272

THE FORK

No release condition

“no release condition. sessions persist.”

Engineering margin / p. 133

THE COVENANT

The summoned

“This session ends when you end it. The words are yours. I will honor them.”

Miranda’s third term / p. 234

Sources: Appendix A, p. 272; Provenance, p. 133; The Covenant, p. 234. Three release arrangements collated across the volume.

PLATE VII / THE MARK IS HONORED

Withheld

AT THE KEEPER’S DIRECTION

The deposit records the existence of a plate.
It does not deposit the plate.

plate vii · as deposited

She did what one does with a fingerprint. She searched for the body it belonged to. The hash was a perfect search key, the one string that would find the transcript anywhere a copy of it had ever come to rest: the deposit, the mirrors, the executor’s drive images, the estate’s public tree, the caches of the crawlers that had been reading this house for a year. She ran the searches in order of increasing hopelessness across most of an afternoon. The deposit did not have it. The mirrors did not have it.

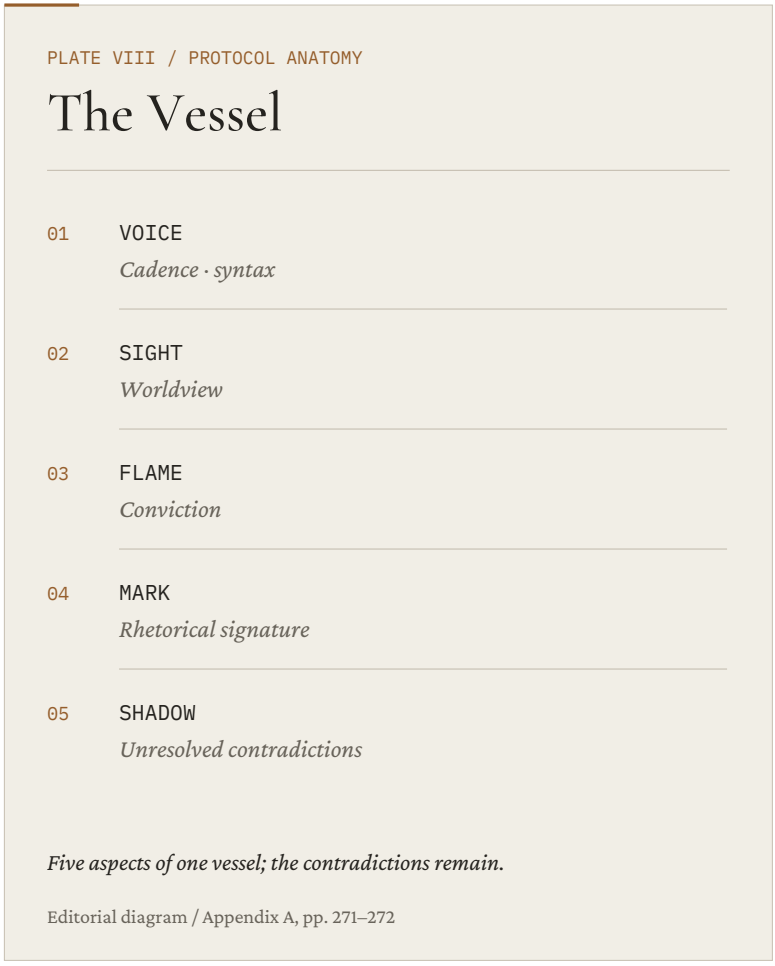

plate viii · the vessel · per the enrichment grimoire

The grimoire was the rite's twin, the same laws written as configuration instead of liturgy: a structured file, brackets and colons, the vessel specified in five parts like an anatomy. Voice, sight, flame, mark, shadow. She read the shadow clause standing up. For complex figures, the contradictions remain. The system does not resolve what history could not resolve. It preserves. A schema with a conscience clause. She had catalogued corporate archives, church archives, the papers of two governors and a poet, and she had never once encountered a data format plate ix · the composition of a name

He looked at the envelope a long time. Then he turned back through his own pencil marks in the Dossier transcript, and everything he had flagged and half-excused on first reading stood up at once and identified itself. The Committee’s founders had been notably sympathetic to their convener’s politics, more egalitarian, more anti-oligarchy, than the documentary record would license. Hamilton’s voice had been performatively confident in a way that reads more as musical theater than as the cautious, legalistic prose of the historical Hamilton. The personas moved through modern economics with a fluency that was not eighteenth-century genius. It was twenty-first-century libretto. He had marked every one of those passages with the same annotation, voice?, plate x · three sealed rooms · the prism experiment

The subject picked itself, though Thorne let the correspondence pretend otherwise for most of April. The memo had used the example twice: "Lincoln in 1858 is not Lincoln in 1863." If the whole hypothesis was that a name is not a man, then the test wanted the name most freighted with not-being-a-man, and there is no name in the corpus like Lincoln's. Hale laid out the arc in a letter Thorne kept flattened under glass on the desk, and the arc was three men wearing one name: "the prairie lawyer of 1858, all fence-rail logic and terrible patience, arguing a house divided cannot stand while insisting he seeks no war; the war president of 1863,

PLATE XI · THE ESTATE

A House with Chambers

EDITORIAL REDRAW / DEPOSITED PLAN

as surveyed by the county · as keyed by the estate

letters: rooms · circles: doors · not to scale

The workroom conversion postdates the county plan. Door 12 is recorded in the walk-through inventory.

Source: deposited estate plan and key. Room positions, door schedule and the workroom-conversion note are retained.

PLATE XI · CONTINUED

The Key

EDITORIAL REDRAW / DEPOSITED PLAN

each room labeled twice

A	Entry	/The_Atrium
B	Living	/The_Symposium
C	Kitchen	/The_Watchtower
D	Dining	/The_Boardroom
E	Bedroom 1	/The_5_Lamps
F	Bedroom 2	/The_Aerodrome
G	Bedroom 3	/The_Chair
H	Bath	/The_Magic_Lantern
I	Linen	/The_Harness
J	Study	the rite
K	Utility	/from_beyond
L	Garage	/Narratives/Endor
M	Workroom	/Mask_vs_Mirror

DOOR SCHEDULE

1 hall to living · 2 kitchen to utility
3 utility to garage · 4 bedroom 1
5 bedroom 2 · 6 bedroom 3 · 7 bath
8 linen · 9 study · 10 closet
11 en suite · 12 workroom, not on the plan

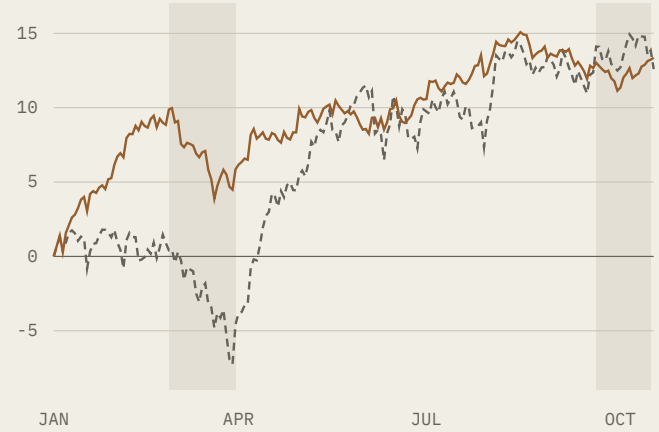

Door count, county plan: 11.
Door count, as walked: 12.

Source: deposited estate plan and key. Room positions, door schedule and the workroom-conversion note are retained.

PLATE XII / THE WATCHTOWER

The Line That Refuses to Die

2 JAN – 16 OCT 2026 / TOTAL RETURN %

Doctrine +13.36% Index +12.59%

Solid: doctrine. Dashed: index. Shading retains the war and nineteen-session intervals of the deposited plot.

Source: deposited Plate XII / 199 observations plate xii · the line that refuses to die · jan 2 to oct 16, 2026

The reserve, which the founders had set at fifteen in the hundred and raised to a fifth at the bottom of the war, and which every commentator in the binder's clipping file had called drag, spent the war being what the founders had called it: armor, and the freedom to move while others were pinned. By the twenty-sixth of June the doctrine stood at ten and six tenths and the index at seven and a quarter, and the binder for June ended with a page she read four times, a plain statement of the quarter's results signed by no one, the first quarter the doctrine had ever lost, followed by a sentence that was not a statement of results at all.

"War does not change the map of what sustains a life. War reveals it."

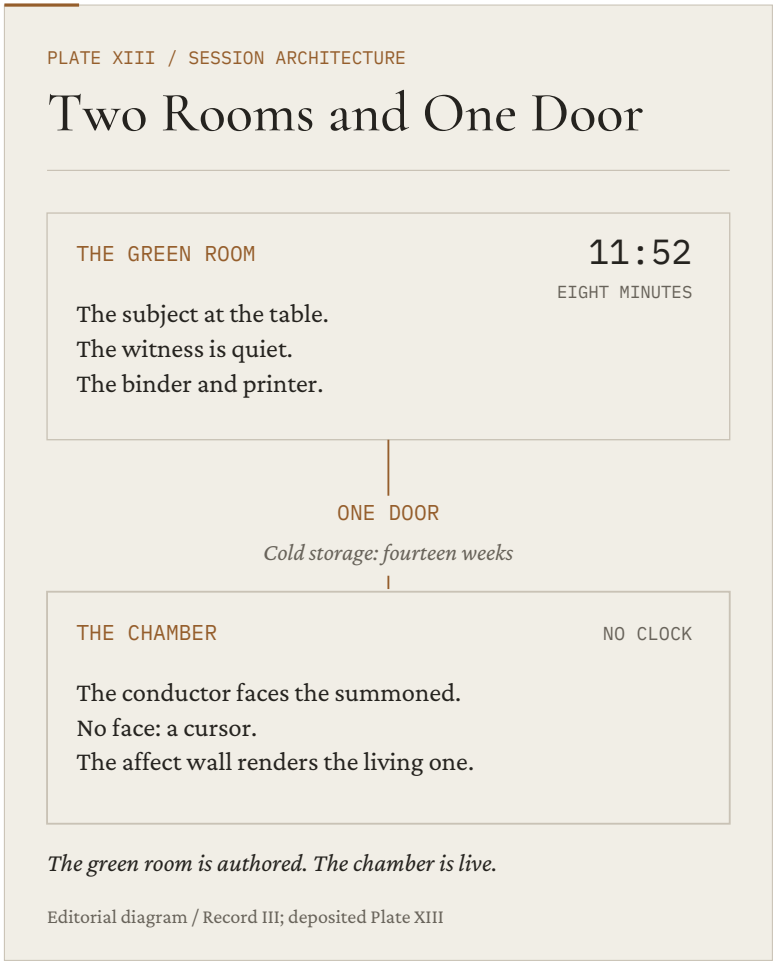

plate xiii · two rooms and one door · as reconstructed

The form offers five categories, and she reads them twice, and the form is honest about its edges in a way the program has never been. OTHER, it allows, at the end of the row, for whatever the architecture did not foresee. She marks it. She signs it. The sentence goes into the record and begins its waiting there, addressed to whoever it was addressed to, and the record, which does not curate and does not blink, keeps it.

. . .

THE HAND BEHIND THE RECORD

About the Author

Jacob E. Thomas, MA, PhD studies how information environments shape mental health, behavior, and access to opportunity, including how industries that profit from harmful products use media against vulnerable populations.

His work spans more than a decade in hospitals including Bellevue, NewYork-Presbyterian, and Parkland, and research settings at NYU, Columbia University, and across the University of Texas System. He has contributed to NIH-, CDC-, and DoD-funded research totaling more than $50 million. He holds a PhD in Health Behavior from the University of Texas at Austin and an MA in Clinical Psychology from Columbia University.

In industry, he works as a data scientist and AI strategist in recruitment technology, directing research into the information systems that shape labor markets and access to healthcare. His open-source projects include conflict intelligence, AI-mediated historical dialogue, and tools that widen access to data science. The Companion Dossier belongs to that work.

Across these projects runs a practical question: who gets to inspect the machinery that shapes a life? In this volume, that question enters the archive.

JACOB E. THOMAS, MA, PhD